

A Guide to the Selection and Care of Your Personal God

A Doggone Good God Book Have you selected your God as carefully as you would select your pet? And how do you care for your God? Do you have a twenty-first century concept of God, a concept compatible with space-age knowledge about the universe? Are you stuck with an oxcart God when you need space-age solutions to space-age problems? Is your God big enough, wise enough, powerful enough, loving enough, and world-involved enough to support you and to help you meet the complicated challenges of todays living? Did you lose your baby teeth but not your baby beliefs about God? Peoples beliefs about the nature of reality affect their entire lives, whether or not they are consciously aware of what beliefs underlie their actions. Their most important beliefs are those about the most important realities, and beliefs about God head that list. This book, which parallels the pattern of a dog book, introduces a dog-God theme to highlight the fact that there are various options available with regard to what God is like. Are you quaking before an Archaic Terrorer, running from a Yapping Heel-Nipper, or being ignored by a Purebred High-Nosed? Or have you found the enjoyable Mixed Breed, who can transform your life? In the third millennium, more and more people are taking a fresh look at their outgrown childhood notions about God. This delightful, sometimes slightly irreverent, lighthearted but serious-minded book comes along just in time to help them rethink their basic philosophies of life. The books witty, concise, penetrating exploration of what God is like and how God works in our lives refreshingly challenges much of what we usually take for granted. Whether you agree or disagree with the authors conclusions, you cannot afford to be unaware of them if you seek greater understanding and more effective and constructive ways of approaching life.
