Day Three:

Now Moving Becomes Our Idea

A single chapter from the book
"Get On Your Horse: Curing Your Mounting Problems"
By John Lyons Certified Trainer Keith Hosman

This is a one-chapter excerpt from the book Get On Your Horse: Curing Mounting Problems. As you're no doubt aware, we can't stop a horse that wants to move. It's just not possible and trying to force the issue is a time-waster. In the saddle, no bit is ever big enough or can cause enough pain to make a horse stand still. From the ground, no amount of pleading and no amount of smacking or cursing is going to make that horse park out for you if he's not trained to do so and not of a mood. To combat this, we switch things up in Day Three: Now Moving Becomes Our Idea by saying not stop, but go. We'll position ourselves to climb aboard and, should our horse move off, we'll say to it, in effect: If I can't stop you when I want, then you can't stop when you want.... and we'll just see who's more stubborn. (Hint: It's gotta be you.) We'll then drill on simple ground exercises that serve a dual purpose: 1) They'll improve your leading and ground control, solidifying you as leader in the animal's eyes and 2) They'll make him want to stand still by saying to your horse If you want to move, then move. But do so precisely as I say for as long as I say. They show the horse that standing still (for you to mount up in this case) is the easiest course of action. This will serve as our quick fix to get you in the saddle. This material was pulled directly from the book mentioned, with no changes made to it whatsoever. It is published in this way to aid folks who find themselves facing a single issue and who do not feel the need to purchase an entire book. Note before you purchase: For the most part, this chapter does stand alone, but due to its nature, it may occasionally refer to chapters which must be purchased separately (or by buying the entire book, of course).
