Accountability Office (GAO)

Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO examined selected states considered to be successful in implementing section 1906 of the Social Security Act, focusing on: (1) the extent to which these states are purchasing employer-based health insurance for Medicaid-eligible individuals and achieving budgetary savings, as well as the potential for greater savings; (2) the cost-effectiveness criteria these states use and the populations and services covered; (3) the outreach efforts used and barriers hindering states implementation of section 1906; and (4) legislative proposals suggested by others to improve states efforts.
