

Light On Water: Bipolar Reflections : Poetry And Prose- 1995-2009

Description Complimenting the narrative of his Chipmunka debut Victim of Dreams, his memoir of his childhood in Canada and adult descent into bipolar illness, and eventual exploration of and recovery from it, Bipolar Reflections: Light on Water is by turns mystical, spiritual even cynical but never mediocre or passive. Some of it is indeed the voice of dreams but more of it is the authentic expression of a gifted writer determined to express himself because of and in spite of an illness that has colonised but never conquered him. Bipolar Reflections: Light on Water is, in the end, about life, and the ways some of us live it, aware of death, feeling close to God, but mostly true to its impulse to create. About the Author Jeremy Gluck, born late 1958, is an expatriate Canadian who, with a parallel, successful life in the arts, is now involved in the voluntary mental health sector. Bipolar Reflections: Light on Water compiles poetry and prose written before, during and after the diagnosis that introduced him to the reality of his mental illness and the journey since that has taken him through and beyond many ideas and experiences comprising a recovery the discoveries of which form the backbone of his Chipmunka book, A Definitive Guide to Mental Health Recovery.
